NURSES HOME TO BE ERECTED NEAR HOSPITAL

A nurses' home in connection with the Thomas D. Dee Memorial hospital is to be built this year, according to an announcement made last night by Bishop David A. Smith of the presiding bishopric of the Mormon church, at the annual commencement exercises of the local hospital nurses' training school. The bishop stated that the decision to build the home, which is to cost approximately $20,000, was made on May 10, at a conference in Salt Lake City between the first presidency of the church, the presiding bishopric and Judge Henry H. Rolapp. The church is to appropriate $15,000, provided that the board of trustees of which W. H. Watts is chairman, secure $5,000. It was stated by Bishop Smith that the latter amount had already been secured by Ogden subscriptions, thus assuring the erection of the new building. The commencement exercises were held in the Weber academy auditorium and a pleasing program was carried out. Seven nurses who have completed the training course at the hospital were given diplomas, the young ladies being the Misses Louise Owens, Clara Morris, Irene N. Swanson, Philippa Nelson, Dorothea M. Allen and Elizabeth Snyder of Ogden and Mary L. Swan of Kaysville.

The graduates entered the auditorium with other nurses from the hospital, Supt. O. J. Stilwell and Miss Sainsbury, head of the training school, took their places on the platform in front of the choir and left, while a march was being played by Lester Hinchcliff. On the platform with them, when they were seated, were Mrs. Thomas D. Dee, Mrs. R. B. Porter and other members of the hospital board of trustees, officials of the Mormon church and a number of local physicians.

Bishop David A. Smith offered the invocation and Mrs. Agnes Warner gave a fine rendition of a vocal solo. Dr. R. S. Joyce was the first speaker, his remarks being relative to the purpose of the nurses' training school, and Dr. A. Robinson spoke on "The Training School Plan," showing its meaning as an emblem of service for humanity. O. J. Stilwell submitted the annual report of the hospital, showing that it now had an enrollment of 30 nurses and students, instead of 12, a year ago, and that, financially, it was on a paying basis. A vocal solo was rendered by William H. Manning and this was followed by the administering of the Florence Nightingale pledge to the graduates, by Dr. Eugene H. Smith. This was one of the most interesting features of the program. Miss Helen Hunter played a violin solo and Bishop Smith made a short address, announcing the proposed construction of the nurses' home.

The closing features were the presentation of the diplomas by David O. McKay and that of the pins, by Miss Sainsbury. Following the exercises, the nurses and their friends passed the remainder of the evening in dancing.
